During this session, the speakers will explore the major changes to the Solvency II Directive, their implications for insurance companies, and the elements still under review.

The second part will focus on the key concepts of deferred taxes and will present an overview of the application of LAC DT to the Luxembourg market.

The last part will examine the results of the SFCR analysis of the Luxembourg insurance market (life and non-life) as well as the dashboard used to analyze the data.

The session will highlight the importance for actuaries in understanding regulatory changes, tax implications, and market analysis, as these factors are essential for accurate risk assessment and strategic decision-making in the insurance sector.
